Europe's top court just delivered multi-billion-dollar blows to Apple and Google

Apple has lost its fight to dodge a €13 billion ($14.4 billion) tax bill following a ruling by Europe's top court Tuesday, which dealt a blow to the world's most valuable company just a day after the iPhone maker unveiled a host of product upgrades to boost sales.

The European Court of Justice also upheld a €2.4 billion ($2.6 billion) antitrust fine against Google, in a separate decision.

The two ECJ rulings are final, which means the companies cannot appeal them.
